American Artist CRITIQUES
Sponsored by BLICK art materials
One of the most useful aspects of painting workshops is the personalized critiques offered by knowledgeable instructors. Now you can get this advantage anytime through American Artist CRITIQUES, a service courtesy of Workshop magazine.
Careful readers of our new quarterly publication, Workshop, have noticed that many of that magazine's in-depth articles feature critiques of paintings. Through our new online service, you can get commentary and suggestions on your new work by simply e-mailing a high-resolution scan to:
critique@myamericanartist.com
We'll select the most instructional from the received submissions and send them to one of the featured artists in American Artist, Workshop, Drawing, or Watercolor for their expert advice. Each week, we'll post another critiqued painting or drawing on our website. The process will be completely anonymous—your painting or drawing will not be identified.
View a critique of this painting now at www.myAmericanArtist.com
Tap into the experience and knowledge of our featured artists today, with American Artist CRITIQUES! Online now.
Please send scanned images as JPEGs at 300 dpi. Limit: 3 submissions per person every 90 days. We will not notify those selected for critiquing, nor will we notify those not selected. Submission of art-work to the e-mail address critique@myameri canartist.com constitutes permission to reproduce your painting or drawing, online or in print, in conjunction with this service.
